CONTENTS

1 Introduction
1-6 "Some Reasons for Western Interest in Buddhism"
2 Buddhism - a noble tradition of scholarship
2-26 Is Buddhism a religion?
3-4 "More" than the individual?
5-6 Dharma rather than Buddhism - distinguishing between 6-12 "Buddhism and the Sacred"
7 The statistical individual and collective values
8-10 Trans-polytheistic monism
   Bodhisattvas and polytheism
10 Ling's interest as sociological rather than spiritual
11 Tibet - a Buddhist state par excellence!
12- "The Historical Perspective"
13 The literalist approach/Absolute truths
16-17 The limitations of the academic approach
17 Historical critical approach
   The struggle between the medium and the message
   Academics miss the point of actual experience
18-26 The academic approach versus experience
18-21 Buddha, Marx and alienation
22 The 'sacred' sanctions the individual
23 An ethnic phenomena
24 Suggesting that Buddhist civilization is Buddhism
26-33 "Modern religious pluralism"
27- Western Buddhism as part of the local religious culture
29-33 Ling's oblivion to why Buddhism is socio-revolutionary.
   Private consolation and spiritual uplift rather than a means of growth
33-37 "Great Religions' as residual civilization"
   Buddhism is more than one of the religions
34 The difference between Buddhist and Christian civilizations (legally enforced dogma)
34 Universal or ethnic religion
35 Great religious systems - total prescriptions for human affairs
37-40 Hindu civilization
   Distinguishing between ethnic and universal religion - Ling's confusion
39 "Dharma" in the Hindu sense
40-41 "Islamic civilization"
   Submission to the one god
41 "Judaico-Christian Civilization"
42-43 The limitations of the social/political viewpoint
   Presenting religion in terms of civilization
43-44 "Modern Societies and Theistic Belief"
   The function of theistic belief to legitimize the civilization
"Alternatives to theism"

The vision of a new civilization or the vision of an enlightened person
Ling's lack of consideration for the individual

"The weakness in the introduction is the Ling does not see the dharma as dharma or the Buddhism as dharma. He does not think of the dharma in terms of the development of the individual therefore doesn't think in terms of the individual at all and therefore sees Buddhism, religion, purely in ethnic terms, as civilization, and quite unable to distinguish ethnic religion from universal religion"

The individual, the group and the spiritual community

Bhikkhu Arkasa's letter from Ceylon

Part 2 - "North India in 6th Century BC"
The Indian Middle Country - text giving the background of the physical, economic and social environment in North India at about the time of the Buddha

The Heart of the Middle Country
"A land of abundant food" etc., and forest
The Aryanisation of the Middle Country
Rice cultivation and the population increase
Development of Urban Life
Six cities of the Middle Country
The Buddha and his disciples - long journey on foot
Parallels of development between the East and the West.
The industrial revolution and the exploitative and appropriative attitude of the West
Christianity and the rise of Capitalism
The price of new technology in human terms
The inventor and the exploited
The importance of financial independence within the Movement - right livelihood.
Mao, Gandhi's salt march - revolution!
"Republics in Decline" an increase in size and power of the monarchy
Tribes and caste systems
The Kshatriyas, shakyans and the Brahmans
The Shakyan republic
The rival interest of different groups rather than undisciplined individuals or undisciplined individualism
Monarchy versus republic
"Theories of kingship" - the most handsome
Kings/devas - the Buddha's use of the terms
"The disadvantages and advantages of monarchy"
Justice and karmic consequences
Injustice of criminal law
Coercion and picketing
The child and the socialisation process
Justice and Fairness
"The King as the Supreme Individual"
"The Emergence of Individualism"
Ling's definition of individual
Specialisation and individualisation
Awareness of being and individual

"You must establish your own positive relationship with the society to which you belong"

Jitari's cave!

Contributory factors to the process of individualisation
Being aware that your manners and customs are not absolutes
Queries, conflicts and acceptance within the group
Natural development

Dukkha

Chaka Zulu

Individualism as a consequence of urbanism and Monarchy -
The lack of real evidence for the hypothesis

Personal differentiation or individuality

'Participation Mystique' - group consciousness and losing one's self-consciousness or reflexive consciousness

Being with other people but not being a group
Enjoyment and mindfulness

Self awareness and communication with others

The order and levels of commitment/implementation

"To be aware of other people you've got to be aware of yourself" (reflexive consciousness)

Log's dubious "Cause-effect" sequence

The tradition of the wandering sadhu
Refinement in the city

"A Time of Religious Change"

The sacrificial system of the Brahmans

Kutadanta Sutta

The Buddha's use of irony

The six preferable forms of sacrifice

Presenting Buddhism as the fulfilment of someone's ideal

"Popular cults and beliefs"

The 'low arts' forbidden to the Buddha's Order

Brahma - another facet of conditioned existence

'Anadisamsara' - the beginningless samsara

The universe has no perceptible first point of origin

The Buddha's tolerance to belief in supernatural beings
Mara - a "bridge concept"

The irrational fear and looking inward

Degrees of disapproval
"... Righteous indignation and passionate denunciation is quite out of place"

"The Mendicant Philosophers
'Ajivakas'

Monarchy control through guilds in England and India

The "visible fruit" of the shramana

Dangers of being amenable within society

The Bodhisattva is not a social worker
The positive group and the spiritual community
Individual rather than individualistic
Using the term 'Movement' to describe the FWBO
Skilful ways of explaining what one "does"
"It's the function of the group to produce an individual"
'Rajapurisa' - not ordaining the king's man
Effects of unsympathetic governments on Buddhist sects
Bhante's own experience in Kalimpong
"The Ajivakas"
The inevitability of progress negating the possibility of spiritual life
New Age mentality
Maharishi - dawning of the Age of Enlightenment
The Jains
The Materialists
- a more refined hedonism
Devoting oneself to pleasure is self-defeating
The Sceptics
The Buddha's points of contact with other schools
Our present day parallels
Pagan - 'pertaining to the village'
The Stoics
Part 3 - Buddhist Civilisation in Principle
The Buddha's Historicity
Early worship of the Buddha, relics and image
The word of the Buddha as paramount to the Life of the Buddha
The Dharma without the Buddha?
Why the Buddha's historicity is important
Buddhism based on the experience of all who gain Enlightenment
Concentrating on the essentials, not trivia
Gotama's social and cultural milieu
Individuals - arising out of urban life
'Hinduism' at the time of the Buddha
The Buddha using existing idioms to communicate
The Buddha's age at his Enlightenment - 29?
The Four Sights
The Buddha's 'public activity'
The first 'discourse'
The need to communicate the Buddha's spiritual experience, not just 'the facts'
Why did Trevor Ling choose Buddhism to write about?
Taking the FWBO seriously because it owns property
The Buddha at Shravasti
'Monastery' = 'Rest House' in the Buddha's time
Why the Buddha stayed near cities
The composite nature of the Mahaparinibbana Sutta
The tribe and the spiritual community
A regular assembly of the Sangha based on a common commitment to the Dharma
Misrepresenting Bhante and quoting out of context
Using WBO conventions to clarify issues
Cities again
Ling's lack of sensitivity to the spiritual dimension of the Buddha's life
Should one 'water down' the Dharma to make it acceptable?
Meditation as a gradual unification of one's positive emotional energies and how meditation bridges the gap
Meditation - samatha and vipassana
'No meditation, no Insight!' The terms 'spiritual' - alternative terms
The Four Dhyanas
Equanimity
The Buddha's realisation upon his Enlightenment
Conditioned co-production - The Wheel of Life and The Spiral
The reactive and the creative mind
The textual sources of the twelve positive links
The usefulness of the Abhidharma
Vidya - 'appreciative understanding'
What is meant by the word 'human'?
What is Going for Refuge to the Buddha?
Why do people seek out the Dharma?
The three marks of existence
Dukkha/Suffering/Unsatisfactoriness
Impermanence - Anicca
Anatta
Getting rid of the ego!
The Four Noble Truths - based on the principle of conditionality
Morality, Meditation and Wisdom
The two Eightfold Paths
An Arahant cannot become a bhikkhu
Morality
Salaries and living expenses in the WBO
The danger of the calling the Sangha a 'Professional Order'
The value and spiritual significance of work
Beware of the language of danger!
Non-ego and the development of the Individual
Rationalism
The Buddha's distinguishing rather than analysing Orthodoxy
The word 'asceticism'
Non-neurotic needs
A different term than Buddhism - 'Sasana'
'Transcendental Humanism'
What the FWBO is for, spiritually speaking
Buddhism and Marxism
The ethical as the stepping-stone to the spiritual
A king in India as a semi-divine being
The word 'religion'
Mixing metaphors in language
Joining the Order, or a traditional Order, and being deconditioned, then reconditioned

Learning by participation, not just study

'The New Society'

How individualism emerges

Moving from a mental to an emotional involvement with Buddhism. 'Dragon's head, snake's body'

We probably know enough already to get us to Enlightenment

Excess thinking is pathological

Learning to do nothing. 'Even your leisure has to be filled with leisure activities!'

Effort and Will

The Buddhist Sangha

The growth of formal begging in Buddhism

Busy, bustling bhikkhus. 'Bhikshu' = 'sharesman'

The group exists for the sake of the Individual!

Spiritual development as one's 'work'

Feeling a link with one's spiritual friends when alone

'The Beginnings of the Buddhist Order'

Integration through the Dhyanas

'One pointedness of all the energies, not forcible fixation of attention on a single point'

Are the four satipattanas a self sufficient means to Enlightenment for the majority of Westerners? - No

The necessity of positive emotions/relationships

One's overall tendency is in the direction of alienation

More suitable times for day for particular meditation practices?

'Pure consciousness'

'Common' and 'Interrelated'

Misinterpreting 'Anatta' as non-individuality rather than no restriction upon individuality

Living up to others' imaginary picture of what a Buddhist is supposed to be

Clarifying wrong views via the Sangha/Order meeting

A 'Walking Wrong View!'

The 'Party Line'

The importance of quoting Bhante in context

Being hysterical and being enthusiastic

Sanghabhedha - division/schism of the Sangha

The tendency to ego assertion in relation to practical matters

Being and Individual and being individualistic

The nature of the Buddha's leadership

The worst punishment is to cut off contact

There is no exercise of power in the spiritual community

Changes to the Vinaya since the Buddha's day

Sources of power in modern society

No majority vote in the spiritual community

The story of Devadatta

Wanting to 'join' the Order as a group
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Topic</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>438-441</td>
<td>Ashoka's 'Rock Edicts'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>443</td>
<td>Kierkegaard's &quot;Attack on Christendom&quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>445</td>
<td>A twofold morality - for layfolk and religious orders</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>447</td>
<td>'Honouring another's sext'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>449</td>
<td>Buddha Seeds</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>452</td>
<td>'Iddhi'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>451-453</td>
<td>Reverence to Stupas</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>454-455</td>
<td>Devotion and 'Surrender'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>459</td>
<td>The overtolerance of Indian Buddhism in Ashoka's time</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>461</td>
<td>Overview of the chapter on Ashoka</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>General comments on the whole text</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>462</td>
<td>Buddhist publications</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>